Churchill Calls Outlook Grave

Communists Ready For Offensive

London, May 28—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today the Communist army in Korea has been built up to nearly a million men during the long truce talks and "the situation is very grave."

But he told the House of Commons "the United Nations commander—an American general—on the spot believes U. N. forces are capable of holding a violent offensive should it be made against them on the breakdown of peace negotiations."

Churchill spoke to the Commons shortly after Britain's defense minister, Field Marshal Lord Alexander, gave the House of Lords a similar picture of the Communist buildup. Both men said the Communists had used the 10 months of truce talks to nearly double their forces.

Alexander said "there is no evidence at present of an imminent enemy attack, but with their reinforcements the Communists are now in a position to launch a major offensive with little warning and could maintain the initial pressure of the attacks for some time."

He added, however, that U. N. forces had "not been idle during the last ten months," had won air superiority over the immediate battle area and forced the Reds to move their reinforcements at night.

Turns Aside Questions On Koje

Churchill turned aside questions in Commons about the Koje island prison riots and other issues involving British and Commonwealth troops. He said full answers would follow Alexander's return from Korea, which he plans to visit soon.

Emmanuel Shinwell, defense minister in the former Labor government, suggested Churchill consider calling a conference of U. N. members with troops in Korea. Churchill replied that matter should await the return of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden from a trip to France and Germany.

Armor and artillery has been heavily increased. The Reds are now believed to have more than 500 tanks and self-propelled guns.

Supplies of all types have been built up despite Allied aerial bombardment.

Radioactive Ashes Of Uranium Atoms May Be Useful

New York, May 28—(AP)—Radioactive ashes of the atomic age promise cheap sterilizing of food, drugs, and other uses, says Paul J. Lovell of the Stanford, Calif., research institute.

These ashes are atoms formed as by-products when uranium atoms split in atomic ovens. The ashes now are just a headache. They must be removed to prevent the chain-reaction fire in the ovens from being smothered. They give off dangerous rays, though, and millions of gallons of radioactive waste solutions now are being stored for safety in underground tanks.

They probably can be put to use, Lovell writes in scientific American, describing a Stanford study made at request of the atomic energy commission.

The rays could sterilize foods so meats, fish, and dairy products might be packaged and stored without refrigeration. Fruits and vegetables might be preserved longer. Foods might be irradiated before canning, sterilizing without heating.

Some drugs now are sterilized by heat, but the atomic rays might do this job, too. They could inspect metals, with X-rays, to find internal flaws, or aid the hunt for new chemicals and synthetics, Lovell writes.

The potency and quantity of rays available from the radioactive ashes is amazing. One gram of radium, giving one curie of radiation, now costs $15,000 to $20,000. But one curie of radiation from the atomic ashes would cost from a few cents to a few dollars.

PAYS TAXES WITH 16,238 PENNIES
Springfield, Ill., May 28—(AP)—Henry Porter lumbered into the county treasurer's office today—a small but heavy box on his shoulder.

He was there, he announced, to pay his real property taxes. Collectors peered unhappily inside the box, gave Porter a receipt for $162.38 and started counting.

Inside the box, Porter had assured them, were 16,238 pennies.

Air-wave television allocations made in the United States in 1952 are expected to make television possible for more than half the people of the country.

France Nabs Red Boss In Riots

Paris, May 28—(AP)—France arrested the No. 1 French Communist during widespread, bloody and well organized anti-Ridgway rioting today and charged the Reds with a revolutionary conspiracy against the republic.

At least one rioter was killed, 20 police needed hospital treatment and about 80 other persons were injured. Some 600 persons were arrested of the thousands who took part in the demonstrations.

At a dramatic midnight news conference the cabinet's police chief said the uprising had been conquered and "we will always be masters of the situation."

The Red boss, Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist party, was arrested at his car during the armed Red rioting.

Police said they found in the car a loaded revolver, a blackjack, a special radio receiver and, under a blanket, a covey of carrier pigeons.

French police, outnumbered at some places against Red attacks with spiked clubs and other weapons, put down the uprising that swirled on several fronts through the bloodied streets of Paris.

One man was killed in the rioting. He was identified as a resident of the northern Parisian suburb of Aubervilliers. He was fatally injured in the fighting around the Gare de L'Est (East Station) which handles traffic from the east and serves many commuters.

An American reporter at the Gare de L'Est said the police were outnumbered 10 to one by the rioters and fired into the mob.

He said the Communists are using the name of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as a pretext for making attempts against the security of the French republic. Ridgway is succeeding Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as commander of Allied forces in Europe.

"Armed commandos of the Communist party," he declared, "have in effect attempted a conspiracy against our Republican institutions."

He said Duclos was caught red-handed and was arrested at once. Brune refused to tell reporters where Duclos is being held.

Editions of the Communist newspaper L'Humanite dated Thursday morning carried a front-page message from Duclos addressed to the German Socialist and Communist parties.

Writing on behalf of the central committee of the French party, Duclos proclaimed French solidarity with Soviet-ruled East Germany. His article said the French approved without reservation the Soviet proposals for concluding a peace treaty and uniting Germany. He described Ridgway as a "microbe-killer."

At Nice, on the Riviera, mobile guardmen used tear-gas on crowds screaming anti-American slogans. In Marseille, the big Mediterranean port, city 150 demonstrators were arrested in a four-hour battle with police.

The scene of the protest was to have been the Place de la Republique, in the heart of the working section. But thousands of policemen barricaded all approaches to the area and prevented the event from taking place there.

Western Powers Propose Armed Forces Cut

United Nations, N. Y., May 28—(AP)—The western Big Three powers proposed today that the United States, Russia and China reduce their armed forces to a maximum of 14 million men each and France and Britain cut theirs to a top of 800,000 each.

Agreed upon after weeks of consultations, this openly was billed as a western move to counter Russian demands for a five-year, across-the-board cut of one-third in the armed forces of those five powers.

U. S. Delegate Benjamin V. Cohen said the proposed reduction would mean more than a 50 per cent cut for the United States and he assumed, for Russia and China.

The United States has about 3,600,000 men in its armed forces. Russia is reputed to have 4,000,000. There are no authoritative figures for Red China.

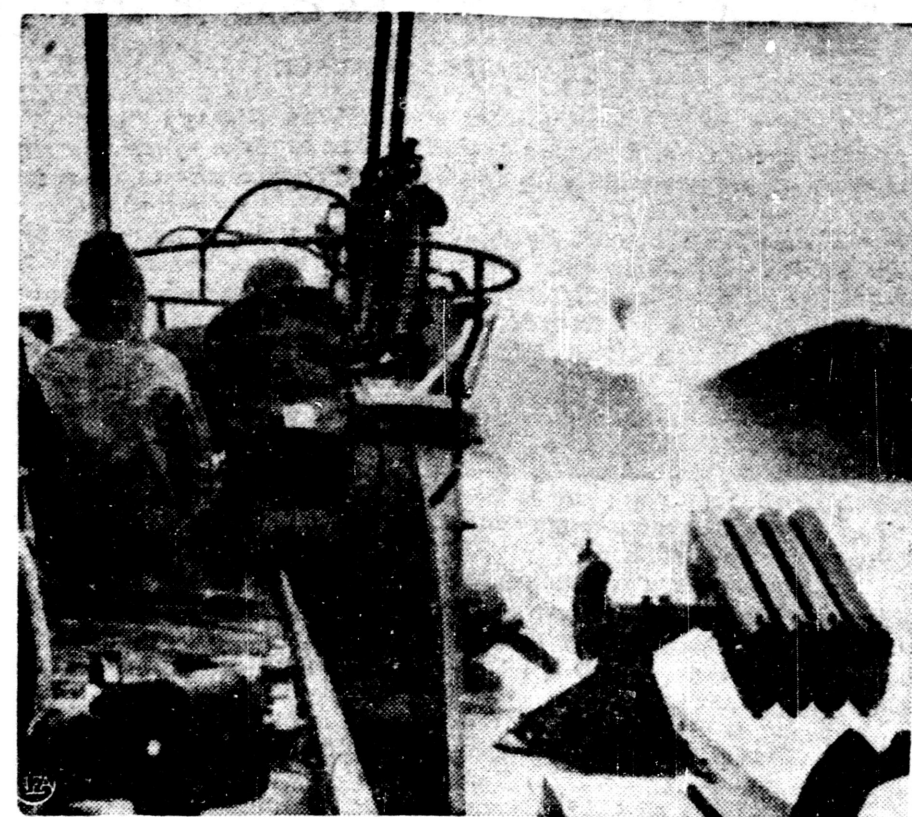

The western powers furthermore suggested reductions in the armed forces of other countries in relation to the cut for the Big Five, with no country having more than one per cent of its total national population under arms.

The proposal, put before the U. N. disarmament commission by Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, Cohen, and Jules Moch of France, did not specify whether it applied to Nationalist China or Communist China, but diplomats said it obviously was aimed at Red China.

The question of China's seat in the U. N., now held by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government, still is to be settled, but Chiang does not have anywhere near the total force mentioned for China in this paper.

TRAFFIC DEATHS INCREASE
Chicago, May 28—(AP)—Traffic deaths in the first four months of 1952 totaled 10,650—a 1 per cent increase over the 10,510 deaths reported in the same period last year.

Those were the figures released today by the National Safety Council, which said much of the increase was due to leap year's extra day.

FROM SOUTH TO NORTH—South Koreans manning one of the UN forces' small but powerful LPT boats send a deadly messenger, in the form of the flashing rocket at right, to North Korean foes.

Truce Talkers Hint Rebuilt Red Armies May Strike Korea

Munsan, Korea, Thursday, May 29—(AP)—Communist truce negotiators hinted again Wednesday that rebuilt Red armies may strike in Korea because of what they called Allied mistreatment of prisoners.

Gen. Nam Il, the North Korea who heads the Communist delegation, characterized his statement as "a grave warning."

The United Nations armistice delegation dismissed the threat as propaganda. Both sides agreed to meet again today at Panmunjom at 11 a.m. (9 p.m., CDT, Wednesday).

The top delegates exchanged strong words Wednesday but made no progress toward achieving an armistice. Prisoner exchange remains the major issue—the Allies refusing to return any prisoner against his will.

Nam Il devoted most of his speech in Wednesday's hour-long session to charges of Allied "massacres" on Koje island on Feb. 18, March 13 and April 10.

His threat of new blows on the battlefield came as tank-led Allied raiders punched into Communist positions on the western front, northeast of the truce conference site. The battlefield has been relatively stable since the truce talks opened last July 10.

Seven Airmen Die As B-36 Bomber Explodes, Burns

Fort Worth, Tex., May 28—(AP)—Seven airmen died today in the crash-explosion of a giant B-36, the world's largest land-based bomber. The other ten crewmen were injured.

The tragedy occurred at ten minutes past noon after the big craft glided in from a routine operational flight to its home base, sprawling Carswell Air Force Base, 10 miles from downtown Fort Worth.

The engine on the right wing next to the pilot's seat was feathered as the craft came in from the south. As it touched the runway it started skidding. The right landing gear crumpled. Fire broke out followed by three sharp explosions and an earth-shaking blast.

Seconds later the big metal hulk was a mass of flames. Dark blue smoke darkened the scene.

The craft carried a normal crew of 17. Ten managed to free themselves or be dragged to safety. They were taken to the base hospital for treatment of injuries. The other seven died either in the explosion or the flames.

The B-36 is the air force's largest operational bomber. It can stay aloft more than 40 hours. The bomber has ten engines, six piston and four jet.

Fear For Life Of Ozark Preacher Fasting 38 Days

Cherryville, Mo., May 28—(AP)—The fasting preacher of the Ozarks, hollow-cheeked and apparently too weak to stand alone, told his wife today "if the Lord wants me to die, I'm ready to go."

The Rev. J. J. Ivie says he hasn't eaten for 38 days and has sworn to continue the fast until his prayers are answered for a spiritual revival against the world's sinfulness and communism—or until he dies.

His wife said today, however, she is confident he will receive divine word that will cause him to end his fast.

Shaken by spells of retching, the 57-year-old pastor of the Assembly of God Church said that Moses fasted for 40 days and received a message from God.

Ivie has signed a statement to protect his family from possible legal action in the event of his death. Mrs. Ivie said he has given her strict instructions not to permit a physician in the house, even if he becomes unconscious.

The preacher has lost about 26

Foreign Aid Bill Passes In Senate

Washington, May 28—(AP)—The Senate passed a $6,700,000,000 foreign aid bill tonight after making an eleventh hour cut of 200 million dollars.

The roll call vote was 64 to 10. The big mutual security measure—one of the "must" bills on the administration slate this session—now goes to conference with the House.

where a companion bill was chopped down to $6,162,600,000 before passage last week.

The legislation authorizes American military and economic aid to a world-wide chain of nations allied with this country against Communist aggression and threats of aggression.

It must be followed by an appropriations measure which would actually make the money available for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Twenty-six Republicans and 11 Democrats, mostly southerners, joined forces to cut the bill 200 million on the floor.

Voting against the cut were 27 Democrats and seven Republicans.

Administration leaders avoided bitter cuts with the help of a group of Republican senators who are supporting Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the GOP presidential nomination.

Most Republicans who are supporting Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the nomination voted in favor of cutting.

President Truman asked originally for $7,900,000,000 in military and economic aid to foreign nations during the fiscal year starting July 1. The Senate foreign relations committee cut this figure by one billion dollars.

Referring disdainfully to foreign aid, Walker said today "we've poured better than 75 billion dollars down this rathole and we're still losing people to Communism. The American people must be thought of at last."

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) noted that Truman said recently Congress "is more interested in embarrassing the White House than in checking the Kremlin."

"I'm not interested in embarrassing the White House," he said. "It isn't necessary any longer. He has taken himself out of the king row."

"But one of the best ways to help the Kremlin is to weaken the American economy."

Republican Floor Leader Bridges of New Hampshire argued that a cut of 400 or 500 million would not cripple the mutual security program but would only require those administering it to set their sights a little straighter.

SENTENCING POSTPONED

New York, May 28—(AP)—The sentencing of three men who have admitted participating in the basketball bribery scandal was postponed until June 24 and the trial of three alleged fixers was postponed until Tuesday in separate court actions today.

OPS Allows Food Price Increases

Washington, May 28—(AP)—The government tonight authorized an estimated 350,000 retail grocers to boost their ceilings on a penny each on hundreds of food items.

Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said the increases mean the public food bill will go up by 100 to 150 million dollars a year.

Arnall told a news conference the increases were granted after repeated requests from the food industry.

The Office of Price Stabilization said that translated into terms of the family budget, the increase is expected to average five cents per week per person more. It said that percentage wise the increase is small in relation to the nearly 32 billion dollars business done by the food industry yearly.

The higher ceilings, effective June 2, apply in both independent and chain stores. They result from higher markups granted the grocers. A markup is the difference between cost to the grocer and his selling price.

The action affects margins on many of the items in this wide range of foods:

Breakfast cereals; coffee concentrates, cookies, toast and crumbs, except crackers; processed fish, except tuna and salmon; flour in five pound packages or less; frozen foods, except juices; many canned fruits, jams and jellies; canned meat, except luncheon meats; oleomargarine, pickles, relishes, many canned vegetables, vinegar and cheese.

On some of the items, OPS said, the higher margins will not result in higher retail ceilings or selling prices. OPS stressed that the increases are granted to accomplish two things: (1) give grocers more flexibility in pricing, and (2) to bolster their sagging earnings.

GOP To Select Ten Delegates-At-Large To Convention

Springfield, Ill., May 28—(AP)—Republican leaders said today they may meet in Chicago next week to select 10 delegates-at-large rather than risk losing recognition of the delegates at the GOP national convention July 7.

The statement was made at a meeting of Illinois GOP county chairmen.

Under a GOP national committee ruling, delegates-at-large must be named by state conventions at least 30 days before the national convention. The Illinois GOP convention to select the 10 delegates-at-large is scheduled for June 23—14 days before the Chicago convention.

Because the state could possibly lose its 10 delegates, GOP leaders said they would meet earlier to name them.

"We are simply moving to insure against delay of recognition of the delegates-at-large," said State Treasurer William G. Stratton. He also is the party's nominee for governor.

Fifty GOP district delegates were elected at the April primary. These, with the delegates-at-large, will comprise the Illinois delegation.

All but one of the 50 elected delegates are said to favor the candidacy of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for president.

The GOP leaders said the previously scheduled June 23 meeting will be held to select a party platform and nominate three candidates for University of Illinois trusteeships.

GOP Women Wear Skirts Embroidered 'Win With Taft'

Chicago, May 28—(AP)—Republican women who are backing Sen. Robert A. Taft for president today were shown a specially designed "win with Taft" skirt.

The skirt was introduced at a luncheon sponsored by the Taft skirt committee of Illinois. Republican women of Illinois who were requested to take an active part in Taft's campaign for his party's presidential nomination by wearing the skirt.

The skirt has "win with Taft" slogans embroidered on it. It is made in black or white, in a circular or four-core style. It is manufactured by Lipman Brothers, New York City. Funds from sale of the skirt go to state and national Taft campaign finance committees.

Miss Maria Gambrell, ballerina with the Metropolitan opera company, New York City, is chairman of the national Taft skirt committee. She urged women to get behind Taft's campaign, saying:

"Well, if women are for him, he must be a great man."

WOMAN WOULD SHARE HUSBAND'S JAIL TERM

Joliet, Ill., May 28—(AP)—The wife of an inmate at Stateville prison today offered to serve part of her husband's five-year sentence.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen said he rejected the proposition made by Mrs. Margaret Gravagno, Chicago. Her husband, Anthony, 39, was sentenced from Chicago on Sept. 14, 1951, for auto theft.

Ragen said the woman came to his office in the prison and proposed that she be permitted to serve two years of her husband's remaining time.

"In that way," Ragen quoted Mrs. Gravagno, "my husband and I can pay what is demanded of him by law."

Ragen said he told Mrs. Gravagno the law makes no provision for substituting one prisoner for another.

The warden said Gravagno has a long record dating back to 1928 and that he served time in at least three federal prisons. He also is wanted now by federal authorities for transporting a stolen car across state lines, Ragen said.

Angry Soviets Create 'No-Man's Land' Near Berlin

Berlin, May 28—(AP)—Passenger travel in and out of Berlin dropped sharply tonight as a result of Communist maneuvers, completed and pending, to isolate further the city's sectors allied with the West.

Wary Germans apparently decided to stay at home rather than take a chance of being caught off base by some fresh restriction from Soviet zone authorities angered by the signing of the West German peace treaty and the six-nation European army treaty.

The East German government, busily creating a no-man's-land and entrenchments along the frontier it shares with the Bonn republic, announced last night that, effective Sunday, anyone visiting the Soviet zone must have a special permit.

Travel agencies reported business was terrible. West Berlin's biggest bus agency said bookings had dropped 30 to 40 per cent. Passenger car movements also were below par, though trucking went along normally on the 110-mile-long Autobahn that links Berlin and West Germany across Soviet zone territory.

The United States, Britain and France were still having trouble with the Russians about getting Allied patrol vehicles on the Autobahn for the routine job of helping stranded motorists.

The Russians cracked down on the patrols yesterday after apparently lifting a ban started May 8. They have yet to give a reason for the action.

West Berliners still were unable to telephone East Berlin. The Communists kept the plugs pulled between the sectors. Some interzonal lines also were cut by the abrupt Red move yesterday, unprecedented even in the Berlin blockade of 1948-49.

$61,252,900 Loss By High Waters Of Great Lakes

Chicago, May 28—(AP)—High waters of the Great Lakes have caused $61,252,900 in damage in one year, U. S. Army engineers estimated today.

The figure covers damage to public and private property along U. S. shores of the lakes.

The estimate of losses was based on a study by the engineers' corps of the havoc wrought by the unusually high levels of the lakes between May, 1951, and May, 1952.

Col. Wendell P. Trower, the engineers' corps' division engineer for the Great Lakes region, detailed the findings at a news conference.

He said the damage was generally severe because of flooded conditions and the erosive action of waves.

He told how some cottages were undermined and pulled out into the lakes and others were made uninhabitable.

"Shore erosion was quite general," Col. Trower reported. "Many beaches were destroyed. Bluffs behind beaches were attacked. There was considerable damage to highways."

Speaking of remedial steps, Col. Trower mentioned:

"Adjustment of artificial factors that affect lake levels"—including such things as diversion of waters and changes in connecting channels.

The year 1951 was the 10th year in which U. S. meat production exceeded 21 billion pounds.

There are believed to be more cattle on U. S. farms today than at any time in history.

No Decisive Victory In Cold War

Washington, May 28—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch advised Congress today to step on the accelerator if it expects to overtake Soviet Russia in the world's rearmament race.

"No decisive victory in the cold war is possible," the elder statesman said, "as long as the Soviets hold as terrifying an edge in military readiness over the West as they do today."

Baruch appeared before the Senate defense "watchdog" subcommittee to advocate a complete overhaul of the defense mobilization program. For one thing, he said, effective controls should be placed on wages, prices and civilian production.

He said there must be greater speed in the actual production of aircraft, tanks and other weapons of war.

Needless inflation, he added, is costing the United States between 19 and 24 billion dollars.

Blames Truman For Waste

The 81-year-old financier, one-time adviser to presidents, blamed this waste on the failure of President Truman to put into operation quickly the system of anti-inflation controls which Congress voted after the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) said his group will soon have a report for congress and the nation on the present state of the preparedness program, with suggestions for improving it.

Baruch told the senators that instead of slowing down, cutting back or stretching out the production of major weapons, the turnout should be speeded up.

Nation May Lose Freedom
By hanging on to civilian comforts instead of stressing defense output, he argued, the nation might lose its freedom.

He urged the Senate to restore cuts made by the House in the military budget for the next fiscal year and to remove a 46 billion dollar ceiling placed on military spending during that period.

Praising Baruch as "one of the half-dozen greatest living Americans," Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) said he agreed that prices, wages and profits should have been frozen by controls long ago.

But Morse questioned Baruch's contention that Truman was to blame for not using control powers.

Gunner Prefers Combat Mission To Dates

Hollywood, May 28—(AP)—Marilyn Monroe will lend a willing ear to the sergeant who likes to shoot up Communists.

From Tokyo today came the story of S. Sgt. Lucien L. (Sag) Thomas Jr., of Richmond, Va., who at 34 probably has had more bomber missions than any other gunner in the U. S. Air Force.

"If you gave me the choice of having a date with a Hollywood movie actress or going up and busting a couple of Communist trains, I'll take the trains," said the southerner.

"Of course, when I got back I might have something to tell that actress about."

To which the comely Miss Monroe replied:

"If he'd like to talk, I'd love to listen."

Thomas, gunner on a night-flying B-36 light bomber, already has been in on destruction of 11 locomotives, a high priority target for night fliers who attack at tree top level at speeds up to 425 miles an hour.

Thomas has 246 combat missions, 114 in Korea and 132 over Europe, which officers say they believe is a record unequalled in the USAF.

THINK TWICE, SENATORS, BEFORE PASSING HOUSE SENATOR TAX PLAN

Reports from the Senate indicate the new House-approved proposal to give members of Congress special tax exemptions may get a couple of sidelong glances before passage. That's more than the thing got in the House. It may well be true that members' salaries have not kept pace with rising living costs. It may also be true that they have a problem in trying to maintain two residences, one in Washington and one back home.

If these things are so, why be afraid to discuss it? Why not draft legislation to increase salaries, or to renew and possibly expand the $2500 expense allowance due to expire next year?

Instead of sailing into the problem openly, the House executed a sneak attack. A plan was drafted that would allow members to deduct for tax purposes all their Washington living costs, including rent, plus travel charges to and from their home states.

But this measure never was submitted to a formal House committee for study, or to any other group. Thus no witnesses spoke for or against it. Nor was there ever a moment's debate on the House floor.

The proposal was tacked on as an amendment to another bill. This was done by a quick voice vote, with no members being formally recorded as to their stand. Any one who has ever watched the House amend or pass bills in this fashion knows it can be accomplished so fast that few in the chamber are aware of the action except those engineering it.

It's pretty clear why the House resorted to legislative sleight of hand. The members undoubtedly feel they might be embarrassed to discuss increasing salaries and expense accounts in an election year when they're busy hollering economy.

The distinguished gentlemen of the House could hardly have been more foolish, since they ought to have realized that a tactic like that, once discovered, usually backfires loudly.

These are the men, remember, who constantly chide the government for being too secretive, for not telling the American public what it is doing.

And here they are snapping through a bill that would, in the judgment of some tax experts, permit them virtually to charge off their full government salary by making it tax free.

A great many members of Congress live 10 months a year in Washington, and some have had a lifetime of service there. There might be more sense in giving them an allowance or pay boost to defray some of their costs back home, since these probably would be far smaller in most cases. Strictly speaking, it is this residence and not the Washington home that is the extra establishment.

The current proposal, as a matter of fact, includes a rental allotment for hometown office space. Yet it is difficult to argue that this should be granted in addition to tax exemptions for all Washington expenses.

The senators who now have this problem in their laps ought to think hard before making themselves party to the House's deception. Where money matters are concerned, voters often have long memories.

RELY ON AIR STRENGTH

Defense officials are leaning more and more in the direction of air power, as indicated by the request by Air Secretary Finletter for an additional $5,000,000,000 to build extra bases for an air arm of 143 wings. The $5,000,000,000 requested of Congress is to cover cost of bases, and does not include the cost of additional planes and personnel needed to implement the program.

The magnitude of an Air Force embracing 143 wings is indicated by the explanation that a wing includes, in addition to its base, a combat group, maintenance, supply and medical detachments. A combat group varies with the type of planes used. For example, 75 fighters or 30 bombers make up a combat group.

Through the years Congress has changed its attitude toward the necessity of increasing the nation's air power. In the beginning the air arm was looked upon as largely supplemental to the military, and there was a difference of opinion concerning its importance.

Those who urged creation of a 90 or 100-wing Air Force were regarded as placing too much importance on air defense, at the expense of the Army and Navy. Now Congress appropriates as much for air as it does for Army and Navy combined.

Modern warfare has reached the point that it can almost be said without air strength a nation is helpless against an enemy which has such strength. Hopes for national security rest more and more on superiority in the air. Without such superiority the United States will remain vulnerable for years to come.

Hollywood — (NEA) — Behind the Screen: Hollywood cheesecake has gone stale.

That's the word from the dean of movie portrait photographers, Ray Jones, of Universal-International studio who declared:

"There's no demand for artistry any more in publicity photographs of movie cuties. Glamor art is cheapened during World War II into strip teasing that has become vulgar and distasteful.

"Economy has eliminated location trips to the mountains and the beaches, where cheesecake art should be made. Beautiful girls should be seen in proper settings. A girl in a bathing suit should be photographed beside a real ocean on a real beach—not on a fake one or in front of a blank wall."

The big demand for candid informal art, Ray said, has also helped take the "oomph" out of Hollywood cheesecake art. Ray, who first clicked his camera at Mack Sennett's 1923 bathing girls, added:

"If you want a beautiful photograph you can't shoot a girl who has a ham sandwich in one hand."

It won't be "Topsy-Turvy and Eva" when Betty Hutton and Ginger Rogers get together to play Vivian and Rosetta Duncan in Paramount's "Topsy and Eva."

Here's what Ginger is saying to people who ask her if she thinks the temperamental spark will fly when she teams up with La Hutton:

"There's no reason why we shouldn't get along. Betty's fairminded, reasonable and talented. We've been friends for years and I admire her. If reports come out that we aren't getting along, it will be the press making it up."

Joan Leslie and Dr. William Caldwell are denying they're due for another visit from the stork. Their twins are now 16 months old. Joan, by the way, is turning down all commercial tieups that would require photographs of the girls. She says: "It wouldn't be fair to them."

At a meeting of the Screen Publicists Guild, someone asked who was handling publicity on Vittorio Gassman's "The Glass Wall," being filmed in New York. There was an immediate and loud shout of "Shelley Winters!"

Horror fans eager for a reteaming of Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi can stop hoping those night marers. Neither Boris or Bela are eager for it.

As Karloff sees it, "Our pictures made a lot of money. But Bela and I both lost something as individual actors."

Mona Freeman has bowed out of "My Little Margie," a film series planned by Hal Roach. Hollywood's answer to TV's ampie Dagmar, Amazonian Gloria Pall, plays a dizzy showgirl in a new Racket Squad film. Gloria's in the same Miss Unconscious league with Marie Wilson. Interviewing her for the role, Co-producer Carroll Chase asked if she worked in the film, "Prehistoric Women."

"Oh, no," flashed Gloria, "that was before my time."

SAME OLD ELLA

A "new" Ella Raines now that she's become a mama and snipped her famous long hair down to a Page Boy bob?

No, sree. She's the leading lady in Republic's "Ride the Man Down," but she told me, "It's the old Ella Raines who once did 'Tall in the Saddle' and I'm letting my hair grow again. I even wore a half-wig in the picture so I would be the old Ella Raines."

Ella's due for a summer stock play, "Twentieth Century," opposite Franchot Tone—"I don't care what his private life is"—and then she hops to Copenhagen for a movie with a "Third Man" type plot.

It's five and a half years of happy marriage now for Ella and Lt.-Col. Robin Olds.

"Our gossip friends," she grinned, "have given up on us."

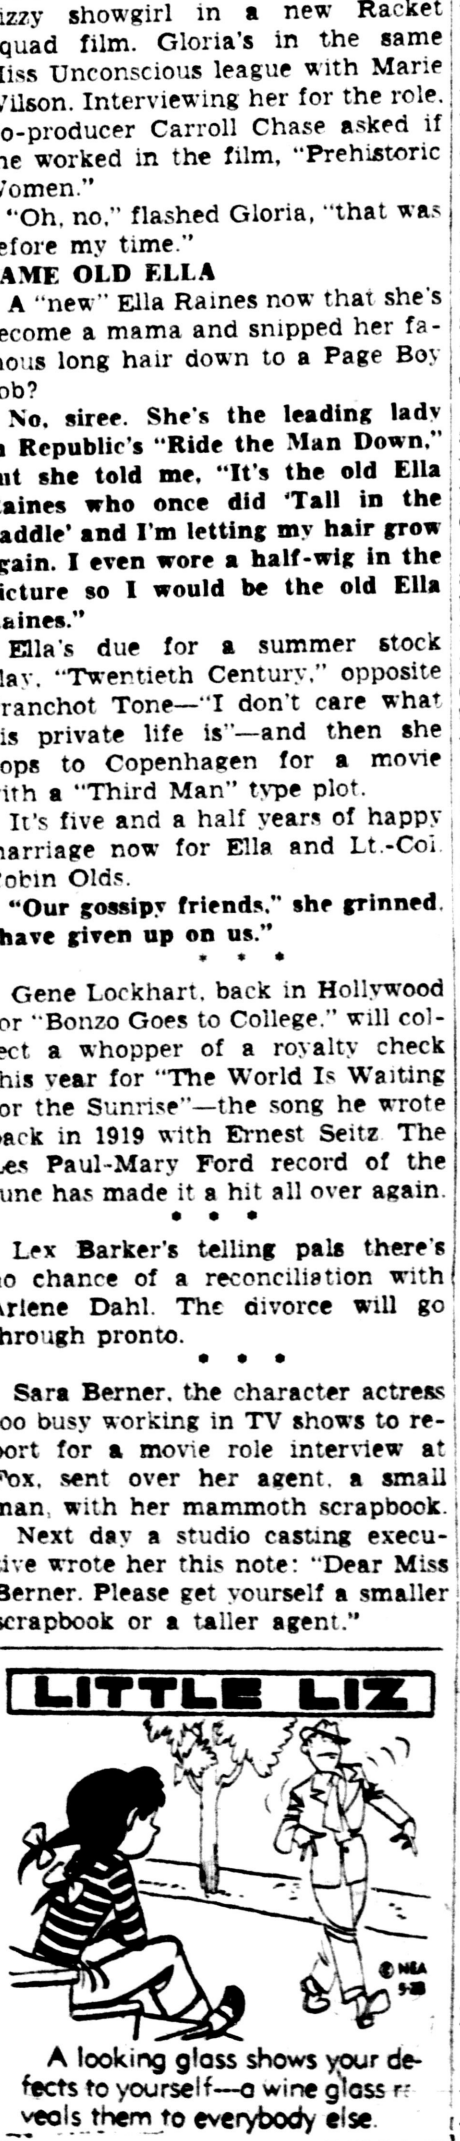

Gene Lockhart, back in Hollywood for "Bonzo Goes to College," will collect a whopper of a royalty check this year for "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise"—the song he wrote back in 1919 with Ernest Seitz. The Les Paul-Mary Ford record of the tune has made it a hit all over again.

Lex Barker's telling pals there's no chance of a reconciliation with Arlene Dahl. The divorce will go through pronto.

Sara Berner, the character actress too busy working in TV shows to report for a movie role interview at Fox, sent over her agent, a small man, with her mammoth scrapbook.

Next day a studio casting executive wrote her this note: "Dear Miss Berner. Please get yourself a smaller scrapbook or a taller agent."

The MATURE PARENT
Mistake Is in Breaking Silent
Enchantment of Child in Love

BY MURIEL LAWRENCE

When a neighborhood theater revived Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Julie's mother decided to make it her child's first movie. In preparation for this exciting experience, she told Julie the story ahead of time.

When the afternoon arrived, Julie skipped and chattered happily all the way to the theater. But when the movie began, this everyday kind of happiness disappeared. She grew very still and silent. Though her new red pocketbook fell from her lap, she did not notice it as she watched the entrancing shape, color, voice and movement of the creatures of her own imagination.

On her way out, Julie's mother asked enthusiastically, "How did you enjoy it, darling?"

"It was nice," Julie said.

A block from home, she and her mother met a neighbor. This time, when Julie was asked to report on her emotion for the neighbor, she said, "Please let's go home now."

As her mother was opening the front door, Julie spoke again. She lifted her still-enchanted eyes to her mother, and struggling painfully for words to express herself, whispered, "Please don't tell any more people about Dopey. Please don't tell even daddy or grandma or anyone about Dopey until I say so."

Starting at the desperately serious face so close to her own, Julie's mother thought bewilderedly, "Why, the child's in love! She's fallen in love with Dopey..."

So Julie had. And right there on the stoop, Julie's mother promised not to talk of this love until the person who felt it had grown more used to it.

Little boys and girls often fall in love like this with things or people in which they sense beauty, gentleness or comfort that are hidden from us. When this happens, they protect their private feeling against ridicule or curiosity by not talking about it. Unless we are alert to recognize their sudden quietness as a sign of their enchantment, we can go blundering as I once did.

It happened a long time ago. I had taken a young person who is dear to me shopping for a new spring hat. It was late and I wanted to get the shopping done. When I found a plain green straw that matched her new green coat, I was relieved. Apparently, I found no loveliness in some lilacs on a dreared little number with navy blue ribbon streamers down the back.

Just one of those things? It didn't turn out to be. Two weeks ago, when I came home one day, I found the same young person, now nearly grownup, busily working on a white straw hat. In the hands that had once stroked those flowers so lovingly on the hat I didn't buy were bunches of lilacs and yards of navy blue ribbon.

"This?" she said. "Oh, I'm just making a hat I've always wanted. I know I'm too good for streamers down my back, but I'm going to have them. See, isn't it lovely the way the lilac looks on the navy blue? It looks exactly the way I hoped it would look—exactly the way I remember..."

I sank down on a chair as we do on such occasions. "But why didn't you speak?" I demanded. "Why didn't you SAY you wanted that hat?"

"I couldn't," said my nearly grownup young person. "It wasn't something I felt like talking about?"

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★
Operation by Skilled Surgeon
Is Usual Treatment for Piles

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Among the most common complaints today are piles or hemorrhoids. This condition gets its name from the hemorrhoidal veins which lie around the outlet of the intestinal tract. When these veins become enlarged or dilated, they produce the uncomfortable symptoms of piles.

The presence of blood around the intestinal waste is one of the first symptoms. Pain and itching are common, but there are several other possible causes for such symptoms also.

At first these symptoms may be present only occasionally, but they tend to get worse as time goes on. In some cases clots form inside these enlarged veins, and this can be very painful indeed. Once in a while the bleeding can be so severe and long-continued that it will result in a true anemia.

It is not entirely clear why so many people are troubled with hemorrhoids. Chronic constipation is almost certainly responsible in some cases. Possibly the sitting posture which is involved in so many occupations today also plays a part.

Childbirth and heavy physical strains such as lifting certainly are not good for the person who has piles, and may have something to do with their development.

Hemorrhoids do not usually disappear of themselves. They may get better for a while, and then return. It is important to avoid constipation. Some of the suppositories especially recommended for piles bring a certain amount of relief, but rarely cure the condition.

In serious cases an operation offers the best means of relief. Unfortunately, however, an operation removes only those hemorrhoidal veins which are already enlarged, and new ones may develop unless the causes which brought on the original difficulty are also corrected.

Sometimes instead of cutting out and removing the piles, they are injected with a solution which causes them to close by means of forming scar tissue.

Physician Must Decide

This is suitable for only some cases and the decision as to whether it is desirable must be placed in the hands of the physician in charge of the case.

Hemorrhoids may be either internal or external or both. When they are internal alone the only symptoms is likely to be bleeding. However, this is not to be ignored any more than the obvious external piles.

Operation in skilled hands is generally best; the immediate effects are not comfortable and no one can guarantee that new hemorrhoids will not form, but the results are usually well worth the trouble.

THOUGHTS

Plan Leisure as You Plan Work
To Make Habit of Enjoyment

It's a matter of routine with many housewives to plan their week's work on Monday morning.

Well, how about taking time out Monday morning to make some plans for the family's enjoyment of the week to come, too?

Take a sheet of paper and divide it into three sections.

On the first make a list of several things you would like to do this particular week. Maybe you'd like to lunch with a friend whom you haven't seen for some time. If so, call her up and decide on a day.

Perhaps you'd like to have several friends over for morning coffee or an afternoon of sewing and talking. If you would, get that arranged. Now you've got something to look forward to yourself.

Next figure out what you and your husband might do together. Any shows you want to see? Any couples you would like to have to dinner? Any ball game or lecture or political meeting you might attend together?

JOT DOWN REMINDERS FOR HUSBAND

Jot down a few suggestions, so that you can say casually on Monday night: "I thought we might have a few couples in for supper Wednesday. Does that suit you?" or "We haven't seen a ball game this year—would you like to go to Friday night's game?"

Then make a list of some things the family might do together—a picnic supper, a swim, a movie. Put down what you might do that week for fun as a family.

You don't have to stick strictly by the lists, but either do some of the things on the list or substitute others for them.

Don't just let this week drift along like last week, with nothing planned, and so eventually ending with nothing much done.

Plan your leisure the way you plan your work. Or you may, like so many women, find that life is mostly work with little fun.

Make Monday planning for the week's fun a habit, and enjoying life will get to be a habit, too.

The World Today

By James Marlow

Washington, May 28 —(P)—While the language in the peace treaties with Japan and Germany is not identical, at least in one part the effect is the same. That's in the agreement for keeping troops in both places.

This country in the case of Japan, and this country and its Allies in the case of Germany, would hardly have signed the treaties at all if they couldn't keep troops in both places.

Both are outposts against Communism. If the Allies left Germany tomorrow it would be an invitation to the Communists to take over in defenseless West Germany. The U.S. marching out of Japan, at least until the Japanese built some defenses of their own, would be another invitation.

The treaty with Japan says that country can re-arm. It has to re-arm if it is to be an ally instead of a liability.

But Germany in the heart of Europe, surrounded by new friends and old enemies, is under suspicion. It is an outpost against Russia, but with reservations. Still, the treaty with Germany may turn out to be the most prophetic and far-reaching step in the history of Europe.

The German treaty doesn't apply to Berlin, part of which the Allies occupy and which, because it's in the Russian zone, is a possible trouble spot. The Allies retain control of their Berlin areas.

While the treaty with Germany gives it practically full freedom over its domestic affairs, the Allies retain the right to step in by declaring a state of emergency any time they think the German government can't handle things. For instance, a rebellion.

★ EDSON IN WASHINGTON ★
David Facing Nevada Goliaths,
Mechling Is Hard Campaigner

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—Of all the unusual political campaigns being waged this year, the candidacy of 31-year-old Thomas B. Mechling for the Democratic nomination as U. S. senator from Nevada merits special attention.

Newspaper and radio people around Washington remember Tom Mechling as a tall, handsome kid, an ex-Marine with a brilliant record in the Pacific, who came here after the war was over.

He first got a part-time job with a low-powered radio station. But he was soon graduated from that and in time began to cover Capitol Hill for one of the confidential, inside-dope business letters. He was a University of Missouri School of Journalism graduate.

Last December, Tom Mechling told a few of his friends, "I'm going home to Nevada and run for the U. S. Senate."

Everybody who heard told him he was crazy.

"I'm going to run next year," the kid insisted. "I've watched what goes on in the floor of the Senate, and I'm sick of it."

"Pat McCarran has ruled the state of Nevada too long, and I'm going to see if something can't be done about it."

Tom Mechling disappeared from the Washington scene and went back to Nevada to spend the holiday with his pretty wife's folks.

Tom had somehow managed to save $6000 while in Washington. He had bought a car and a trailer. It is pretty easy to lose track of people who drop out of sight that way. But the other day there came a report on Tom Mechling from Box 385, Wells, Nev.

Reports Extent of His Personal Campaign

"Thomas B. Mechling, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senate," it said, "has now completed the first three months of what he promised would be the most extensive personal campaign even undertaken in the State of Nevada."

The report gave a statistical rundown on his progress to date. In spite of one-week's get-out-the-vote enforced idleness in a Reno hospital for an appendicitis operation, he has personally contacted 23,000 out of Nevada's 75,000 registered voters, rung 25,000 doorbells, visited 5000 stores and offices, worn out three pairs of shoes and the automobile tires, had two pairs of pants torn by dogs, and made 123 speeches.

Candidate Mechling reports further that he has not actually been bitten by any dogs himself, though one ranch goose did take a nip at him.

Young Mr. Mechling isn't really running against his arch-villain, Pat McCarran, in this campaign. His opponent is Alan Bible.

Mr. Bible just happens to be Senator McCarran's Reno, Nev., law partner. But that gives young Mechling a pretty good talking point. To have two partners from the same law office running the affairs of any one State in the U. S. Senate would seem to be just a little too much of a good thing.

Mechling's chances of upsetting the powerful McCarran-Bible machine are of course terribly slim. Seventy-six-year-old Pat McCarran has been in the U. S. Senate for 20 years.

McCarran Has Built Up Great Power and Influence

In that period he has built up his own power and influence in Washington as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, where he has passed on the appointment of every judge and district attorney. He has also built up at home what is probably the most dictatorial political control of any state boss.

Senator McCarran has achieved this distinction in Nevada by giving personal service to the special requests of the sparse population in his state. If sheep ranchers can't hire native herders Pat gets a private bill passed to import 'em from Spain.

He has helped the sons of numerous Nevada families get their education by finding them patronage jobs in Washington which enabled them to attend colleges and universities in the capital.

He is the defender of Nevada's liberal gambling laws and the opponent of reformers who have proposed federal taxes on such enterprises. His power is so great that he has been accused of ordering the hotels and casinos to withdraw their advertising from publications that have dared to oppose him politically.

Senator McCarran now faces a million-dollar damage suit under the fair trade laws for allegedly influencing this kind of advertising boycott against young Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun.

If young Tom Mechling should be able to pull a political miracle and defeat McCarran's law partner, Alan Bible, in the primary, his opponent in November would be the incumbent Republican Sen. George W. Malone of Reno. Mechling may not be able to take him, either. But at least he proves there are still a few young Davids left, willing and able to throw rocks at the Goliaths.

GRANDMA COMES OF AGE

BY HAL BOYLE

New York.—(P)—This is the heyday of grandma.

There was a time when women hated the thought of becoming a grandmother, and maybe most of them still do. Being a grandmother then meant putting on a little lace cap and sitting by the fire with a cat in her lap, while life passed you by.

But today? A girl just starts hitting her stride by the time she's a grandma. Some of the best years of her life are still ahead of her after she finishes untangling her apron strings.

Look at the world around you. You'll find grandma taking leading roles in practically every field.

Who is the best known living American artist? Most people would say Grandma Moses, whose brush is still as busy as ever.

Glamour is supposed to be the property of the young-in-years, but three Hollywood grandmas—Joan Bennett, Marlene Dietrich and Gloria Swanson—have a seemingly timeless beauty that is the envy of many a more youthful actress.

One of the newest television stars is a grandma—Mrs. Arthur Murray. And in the bright arena of the theater, who shines more luminously than dear old granny Gertrude Lawrence?

Grandma's place used to be in the home. Not any more. Grandmas direct everything from racing stables to baseball clubs. And they run for congress. Get elected now and then, too.

The literary world has known few more consistently successful authors than grandma Mary Roberts Rinehart, who has written so many best sellers it would take a catalogue to list them all.

The busiest grandmother of all of course, is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who year after year is voted by them as one of the outstanding representatives of the sex. Her only concession to her years has been the purchase of a new hearing aid.

It is hard to name a branch of human activity in which some grandma doesn't excel. Dear old granny has put away her lace cap for good. She's out there pitching in with the boys, and making good.

Probe Shooting Of Man Fishing In Jersey County

Jerseyville—Operatives of the Illinois Bureau of Criminal Identification came to Jerseyville from Springfield Monday afternoon to begin investigation into the shooting Sunday afternoon of Clarence E. McCoy of the Nutwood vicinity. John Thompson of Alton was being held in the county jail here in lieu of failure to furnish $25,000 bail on each of two charges filed against him by McCoy Sunday evening. Thompson is charged with assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon.

The bond for Thompson was set during his arraignment Monday morning for a preliminary hearing June 5th, contingent on the outcome of the gunshot wound sustained by McCoy. Sheriff Herman H. Blackbody reported that information regarding the condition of McCoy Monday was of a serious nature.

McCoy was shot while fishing Sunday afternoon from a log in the vicinity of the Greenwood Club in Western Jersey county. McCoy told officials that three shots were fired at him by a man standing on the porch of the Greenwood Club after the latter had called him a vile name and ordered him to get off the premises. The first shot struck McCoy in the chest at a point above the heart. The other two bullets missed their mark.

McCoy made his way from the log to his truck parked not far away and drove to Nutwood where he collapsed and an ambulance was called. He was removed to Boyd Memorial Hospital at Carrollton and later was sent to a St. Louis Hospital where additional facilities were available for handling a case of his nature.

Thompson during questioning here Monday morning maintained that he knew nothing about the shooting. Sheriff Herman Blackbody found a .22 rifle hidden under the mattress of a bed in the club, and reported that he had obtained shells from the locker belonging to Thompson that matched the ones being used in the gun. Thompson told local officials Monday morning that he knew nothing about the gun or shells.

Your purchases of Christmas seals, plus those of your neighbor, are responsible for the installation of a much-needed, modern X-ray machine at Oaklawn sanatorium.

Clear, accurate pictures of the chest are especially helpful in the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis. The savings of several campaigns enables Oaklawn to have the best machine available.

Rev. McKendree M. Blair, president of the Morgan County Tuberculosis and Public Health League, is shown presenting the certificate of title to Dr. W. H. Newcomb (right), president of the board of trustees of Morgan County T. B. Sanatorium. Other principals present at the time were, left to right, Miriam Russel, secretary of the league; J. A. Long, treasurer; John B. Wright, vice president of the board, and Arthur J. French, secretary treasurer of the board.

This modern machine is electronically controlled and is very easy to operate. The tube head is transported by a crane. When it's off center a red light shows; when it's on the mark a green light gleams. A table shows the correct exposure for each section of the body. It will accommodate film sizes up to 14x17 inches.

Allied darkroom equipment includes a refrigerated unit that keeps developing solutions at 68 degrees, and a fast electric dryer that eliminates water marks and stains. The machine cost $6,500.

Cherry County, Nebraska, could be cut into five states the size of Rhode Island.

Clad In 1852 Style,
Women Publicize
Virden Centennial

Dressed in fashions of one hundred years ago, 16 Virden women paid Jacksonville a social call Tuesday afternoon to advertise the Centennial celebration of their home town.

Old-fashioned bonnets and gowns, styled to catch great grandmother's eyes, lent a picturesque touch to the group. Some of the costumes and accessories actually were 100 years old.

Gray-haired Mrs. C. A. Stead was attired in a hat which she said is well over a century old. Ancient buttons and other articles were worn by the visitors.

"We just came to Jacksonville to tell you about our Centennial," they explained. "We invite all Jacksonville people to visit our city June 19, 20, and 21."

The Virden Centennial promises to be an outstanding civic celebration. Three days of continuous entertainment have been planned. In the group visiting Jacksonville yesterday were Mrs. E. E. Smith, Mrs. E. M. Wrightman, Mrs. Everett Brown, Mrs. Ernest DeFewen, Mrs. Otis Mann, Mrs. Edgar Clause, Mrs. C. A. Stead, Mrs. Ray Rose, Mrs. John H. Zell, Mrs. Alex Fair, full, Mrs. Raleigh Worth, Mrs. Grace Bacon, Mrs. Frank B. Stewart, Mrs. James Jenkins, Mrs. Ida Fowler, and Mrs. Albert Becker.

Girl And Boy Hurt
In Minor Mishaps

A girl who fell out of a swing at school and a boy who spilled hot coffee on his chest were treated at Our Saviour's hospital Tuesday.

A fractured left arm was suffered by the girl, 10 year old Marlene Kiver of Winchester. She was brought in at 9:45 a.m. by her mother and was attended by Dr. Paul Garrison of Winchester. She remained at the hospital.

James Howard Cohen, one and a half year old boy, was brought in by his father from their home on Mound road at 6:10 p.m. The second degree burns on his chest were treated by Dr. George Drennan. He was able to return home.

Max Zaslofsky, one of the top basketball players in professional ranks, was only a substitute on the St. Johns college cage team.

Salem Lutheran
Pupils Take Trips,
Receive Visitors

Salem Lutheran school has been taking advantage of the summery weather and the fact that the school year is coming to an end by taking the pupils on educational trips this past week.

The kindergarten made a trip by bus to Roodhouse to see the train station there. They not only viewed the station but were taken in the roundhouse, shown how a train is turned around on the turn-table, and had the opportunity of standing on the turn-table themselves.

A brief tour and ride on the Diesel engine was given these youngsters after which they bought train tickets and rode back to Jacksonville in the coaches.

Grades 1-4 spent a day in St. Louis touring the zoo. Highlights of this trip were the crossing of the Mississippi river, the sight of the tall buildings in St. Louis and the various animals shows. The fact that many of the animals were not in cages amazed the youngsters.

The day was concluded by a brief visit to the Highlands amusement park.

Grades 5-8 were hosts to Beards-town Lutheran school for dinner and a field meet. After a get-acquainted game before the meal, the girls played volleyball while the boys practiced shot-put. The entire group then went to Nichols park.

The girls played kick-ball and the boys ended the afternoon with a softball game which was won by the local team with a score of 10-8.

This Thursday, weather permitting, the annual school picnic will be held at Nichols park. The parents will join the pupils at 5:30 p.m. for a potluck supper.

YOUNGSTERS 'BULLDOZE' TREE

Kansas City, Mo.—(P)—The two youngsters were playing "tank" aboard two bulldozers when one of them accidentally pressed the starter on one of them.

The bulldozer started going backwards, went over an incline and knocked down a tree directly across the railroad track. It finally got stuck in soft earth.

When police arrived the boys, Louis Blair, 10, and Charles Bolton Jr. 11, were playing on a ditch-digger.

From hand to hand and on to final victory goes our Torch of Liberty. Those who have carried it before us, many making the ultimate sacrifice, leave us this message, "The Price of Freedom is Eternal Vigilance." This Memorial Day let us again make our solemn vow to carry forth this hope of peace and happiness.

Phone 139—DAY and NIGHT—For Service

Little old-fashioned courtesy is a big help on a party line.

Space your calls
- others may want to use the line.

When you have several telephone calls, be a good party line neighbor and make them at intervals so the other parties on your line have a chance to call too. And here are some other suggestions that will help you and your friends get the best party line service:

Answer promptly when your telephone rings.

In an emergency give up the line promptly.

Hang up gently when the line is in use.

Teach your children the "Golden Rule" of party line usage.

In many places we are still unable to provide a better grade of service than that which you now have. We are working hard to provide the necessary switchboards, cables and other complicated equipment—and we're keeping a careful record of all applications for better grades of service. They will be filled just as soon as possible.

"FOR HONOR, COURAGE, SCHOLARSHIP"

This ceremony pictured at the David Prince Junior High school is symbolic of a series of presentations which took place in elementary schools of the Jacksonville community during graduation season. The outstanding boy and girl in each school were presented with American Legion and Auxiliary awards, and in some instances the runners-up were given emblems. In the picture (left to right) are Gary Fleetwood, winner; Commander Dale Smith of Jacksonville Post 279; John Fairfield, runner-up; Mona Maureen Stubbfield, runner-up; Mrs. Dale Smith, past president of the Legion Auxiliary, and Sheryl Elaine Savage, winner. The awards are made by the Legion and Auxiliary as a reward to students for the qualities of honor, courage, scholarship, leadership, and service. Presentations in the various schools were made by several men and women representing the American Legion.

A member of the Girls' Athletic association at the local state school, Miss Winkler belongs to the exclusive group of girls who through participation in various athletic events have earned over 4,000 points during their membership in the organization.

Miss Winkler's chief interest has been swimming. She has passed the American Red Cross skill, safety, and first aid tests. She has passed the Red Cross life saving test four times the past five years. In the pool at the school she has served as student life guard and assistant instructor of the Junior life saving groups. Many in this group passed their tests due to her influence, encouragement, and help.

This year Miss Winkler has been president of the G.A.A. at the school, and she will represent it at the State G.A.A. Leadership camp at Conference Point, Williams Bay, Wis. June 8 to 15.

In this week's "A Glimpse Into The Past" in the Journal Courier there will appear an item to the effect that the "Immortal J. N." paid a visit to Jacksonville and invited local citizens to assist him in "lifting a veil from Central Park."

Only a few Jacksonville residents will remember "J. N." who was well known in railroad circles a half century ago.

J. N., whose real name was not known to local citizens, was a prominent attorney and at one time was general counsel for one of the large railroads in the east. His residence was in Indiana.

Railroad men of 50 years ago extended every courtesy to J. N., who was an extensive traveler following an incident which occurred in an Indiana court.

According to railroad men of half a century ago, J. N., who was a brilliant attorney was retained to defend a man who was charged with murder. J. N. is said to have asked the man if he was "innocent of the charge." He told his client that he would not defend him if he was guilty of the crime. After being assured by the accused man that he was "innocent," J. N. took the case and after a bitter court battle a jury found the man "not guilty."

As J. N., and his client walked from the court room the lawyer remarked that it was a "tuff battle" and that he was happy that he had won the case for an "innocent" man. To his surprise the man who had just been acquitted told his lawyer, "but I was guilty."

The story often told 50 years ago, is that the attorney was so shocked that his mind snapped and he had to be placed in a sanatorium. After a few years he was able to leave the sanatorium and became a traveler. Having been general counsel for the large railroads he had passes on practically all lines in the United States and for many years he would secure his free transportation each year and traveled extensively.

He would visit Jacksonville once a year to secure his "pass" from the Jacksonville & St. Louis railroad.

J. N. quit the practice of law and spent practically his entire time on railroad trains traveling from city to city throughout the United States.

Two Verdicts In Suit For Damages

The suit of the Arcady Farms Milling Company against James H. Barry was concluded in Morgan county circuit court Wednesday, with verdicts for both the plaintiff and defendant in varying amounts.

A directed verdict was ordered by Judge DeWitt Crow Tuesday, upholding the claim of the milling company for $777.40 for goods sold and delivered to Barry.

A jury returned a verdict Wednesday after two hours' deliberation, awarding Barry $425 on a counterclaim that he received defective feed and diseased baby chicks from the company.

Agabashian's Deisel Is Ready For '500'

Indianapolis, May 28 — (P) — Freddy Agabashian of Albany, Calif., practiced today in his Cummins diesel special at a speed indicating he expects to set the pace in the 36th annual 500-mile auto race Friday.

While Agabashian was running easily at 132 miles an hour in the low yellow and red car, a manufacturer of conventional gasoline engines complained the diesel had an unfair advantage over the 32 other starters.

L. J. Page of Kent, O., said in a statement the American Automobile Association contest board was "far out of line" in permitting a diesel entry with a supercharged engine of 401 cubic inches of piston displacement.

Conventional engines were limited to 183.060 cubic inches for supercharged power plants and 274.59 cubic inches if not supercharged.

Page, noted speedboat racer who has won the gold cup and Harmsworth races in the last two years, asserted the Agabashian car "could easily run away from the field."

He has owned race cars but stopped Indianapolis competition three years ago after he was refused special size limits for his Pageol bus.

The Cummins engine has to pull more weight than the other racers. Agabashian's car weighs 2,480 pounds without fuel, oil or driver. The conventional cars weigh from 1,500 to 1,700 pounds.

Agabashian will start in the No. 1 spot Friday because he qualified the super-streamlined car at the fastest speed on the first day of trials. His 10-mile average of 138.010 miles an hour was a track record at the time.

The qualifying record was broken three times after that, the last time by 48-year-old Chet Miller of Glendale, Calif., in a V-8 Novi pure oil special.

Jack McGrath of Pasadena, Calif., the race favorite with many of the sport's followers, has been making his fuel mileage tests at about 130 miles an hour.

Lee Waller led the 1951 race at 125 miles with an average of 130.479. After he and the other front runners made their pit stops for fuel and tires, the average dropped to Waller's winning record of 126.244.

Agabashian's apparent desire to set the pace may be complicated by similar ambitions of other sprint car and midwest car veterans who like for somebody else to swallow the dust.

Ben Hogan's Fast Finish Worries Weekend Golfer

New York, May 28 — (P) — After pondering Ben Hogan's victory in the Colonial invitation tournament at Port Worth last weekend we've about decided to default in our match with him next Saturday.

We've got the Hogan jitters, as the pros seem to have also, and don't want him yipping at our heels down the stretch. Look what it did to poor Ray Gafford. Made a wreck of him so the best he could shoot on the final 18 was an 80.

We know all about the handicap business. We, and the expected thousands of others who will match strokes with Ben in the National Golf Day competition sponsored by Life magazine and the Professional Golfers' Association in conjunction with the Western Golf Association, will be spotted so many strokes, according to our respective games, but that won't do us any good.

No handicap could help us against Hogan, although the system devised by a pro named Lionel Calloway is supposed to give everyone a chance. Calloway suggests that golfers shooting over 150 consult their tennis pros, so that automatically eliminates us.

We usually come in under 150, but we're pretty sure we couldn't do it with the Hogan jitters, a malady for which there doesn't seem to be any cure.

It always starts the same way in tournaments. Hogan is behind as the final round starts, and those ahead of him start looking over their shoulders, knowing that any moment there will be a figurative pounding of feet, the blur of a passing object, and a slight figure disappearing in the distance.

Seriously, it's amazing how Hogan turns on the heat in the final round of a tournament. He misses once in awhile, of course. In the Masters this year he showed he was quite human by carding a 79 on the last 18, a performance which, for Hogan, was a remarkable feat. He couldn't do it again if he tried.

But his reputation for a stout finish is such that his rivals are trailing them by as much as a dozen strokes. But He Faded

Back in the late 30's there was another fellow who awed his opponents in the big tournaments. Whenever they saw Ralph Guldahl coming they wanted to run and hide.

Big, handsome and maddeningly methodical, Guldahl just overpowered the field in the 1937 and 1938 national opens, and then he abruptly faded. Some said he had tried to re-farm a game which already bordered on perfection and got himself so tangled up he never could get out the knots. Whatever the reason, he didn't last as a major threat.

Hogan, despite the fact he rarely competes in tournaments nowadays, keeps his game on a high level by constant, dogged practice. We've watched him on the practice tee during a big tournament.

He'd hit ball after ball, any one of which the average player would quit on for the day on the theory he couldn't improve on it. Other pros do the same thing, but Hogan does it longer and with greater concentration until you get the idea he is trying to improve on perfection.

And at times it seems he has succeeded.

Giants Vanquish Brooklyn 6-2 To Sweep Series

Brooklyn, May 28 — (P) — Jim Hearn pitched a strong four-hitter today as the New York Giants vanquished the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-2, to sweep the three-game series and increase their National League lead to two and a half games, their biggest margin of the season.

The Giants put an abrupt end to the phenomenal five-game winning streak of previously unbeaten Billy Loes as they registered their seventh straight triumph to match their season's high. They clipped the 22-year-old rookie right-hander for seven hits in the eight innings he worked, five of which went for extra bases. The eighth hit was off Clem Labine, who pitched a scoreless ninth inning.

Devey Williams led the Giant assault with two doubles and a home run. Don Mueller whacked his second four-bagger in two days. Whitey Lockman chipped in with a run-scoring triple. Alvin Dark and Hank Thompson contributed measly singles. West Westrum singled off Labine, his first hit in 30 times at bat.

Indian Catcher To Minors As Pitching Coach

Cleveland, May 28 — (P) — The Cleveland Indians today sent catcher Quincy Troupe to the Indianapolis Indians to help train the farm club's young pitchers.

The 29-year-old catcher will be on 24-hour recall.

A Tribe spokesman said the AAA American Association club has some "very promising young pitchers" and Troupe's job will be to help them develop their talents.

This was Troupe's first season in the major leagues. He appeared in six games, getting one hit in 10 appearances for an average of .100.

For the past 10 to 12 years he played baseball in South America and Canada and for Negro teams in the United States.

M. Throneberry Signed By Yankees

Memphis, Tenn., May 28 — (P) — Marvin Throneberry, 19-year-old brother of Boston Red Sox outfielder Faye Throneberry, today signed a bonus contract with the New York Yankees.

The amount of the bonus was not announced but the slugging young first-baseman reportedly turned down a $50,000 offer to sign with his brother's club. He had been wooed by a number of other major league teams.

Marvin starred for south side high school here making the all-city team the past two seasons. He's a long ball hitter.

The younger Throneberry is married and the father of a child. He'll report to the Yanks Monday and remain with the major league club for several days before being sent down to a farm team.

FAN BREEZES

BY BOB MERRIS

Jack Rossiter, who opens his annual baseball school in Springfield on June 15th, has announced a desire to conduct a two-day school in Jacksonville sometime during July. Jack, who has former Cardinal shortstop Eddie Miller as chief aide, will conduct his Springfield course for three weeks. This same school has placed 389 boys in professional baseball.

Rossiter is a Washington Senator scout. This corner knows of only one Jacksonville boy who will attend the Springfield school. That's Kenny Wright, who received a special invitation from the portly talent hunter.

But special invites are not required. If the two-day school is held in Jacksonville, it will be a wonderful opportunity for youths in the entire area to crack into pro baseball, scoring triple. Alvin Dark and Hank Thompson contributed measly singles. West Westrum singled off Labine, his first hit in 30 times at bat.

Ken Raffensberger Hurls Reds To 5-2 Win Over Pirates

Pittsburgh, May 28 — (P) — Ken Raffensberger hurled his sixth win of the season against three setbacks tonight as he pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 triumph over the cellar dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates.

Extra base blows made Raffensberger's work easy. Bobby Adams and Roy McMillan smashing homers, and Bob Borkowski a triple. Pittsburgh's first run resulted from Jack Merson's circuit clout in the fifth.

Merson was the big gun in Pittsburgh's attack as he also smashed a double and a triple. His triple in the ninth came with two men away and he scored a moment later on an infield error.

The defeat was charged to Munger, ex-St. Louis Cardinal, who now has lost two straight since coming to the Reds. He was relieved for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Pirates Take Close Look At Young Pitching Phenom

STRIKEOUT STORY—Bristol's Ron Neccia struck out 27 Welch, Va., batters in nine innings in the Class D Appalachian League to earn himself a "night" and promotion to a circuit of higher classification. This ran the incredible 19-year-old, six-foot-five-inch Pittsburgh farm hand's total to 77 strikeouts in 32 innings. (NEA)

Pittsburgh, May 27 — (P) — The Pittsburgh Pirates put their minor league strikeout king through the paces on the home diamond and got word today from catcher Joe Garagiola that there's just one thing wrong with him.

"He wants to strike out everybody," Ronnie Neccia showed up for a physical examination, got a clean bill of health and then went to Forbes Field to display a fine repertoire of stuff during an hour on the mound.

This is the 19-year-old right-hander who lately whiffed 27 batters in a no-hitter with Bristol in the Class D Appalachian league. He's moving up to Burlington, N.C., in the Class B Carolina loop where he'll hurl Thursday night.

Neccia—it's pronounced netchey—was a first baseman in high school. The Pirates signed him as such. He did a little pitching on sandlots at nearby Monongahela. An old Cleveland catcher, George Detore, made a pitcher of him at Salisbury in the North Carolina State league.

Here's Ron's record this year with Bristol: 43 2/3 innings pitched, 106 strikeouts, 10 hits, four runs, 14 walks. He won four straight.

On Forbes Field Ron was all business in the clubhouse while dressing he made no bones about having that tired feeling.

"All I want is a few good nights' sleep," he said. "I haven't had much rest since the word got around that I was pitching to guys with holes in their bats."

Garagiola thinks this kid phenom anything but a freak.

"He's got a lot of stuff," said Joe. "He's big and lean, 6 feet 5 and 180 pounds, the whippy Ewell Blackwell type, and he can throw as hard as anybody in this league."

Then Ron was asked how it felt to strike out 27 in a nine-inning game and replied:

"I didn't think much about it until the next day when everybody seemed to be talking about nothing else but that."

There wasn't much use asking how he felt to strike out 20, 19 and 24 in other games down there in Bristol.

Bruins Thump Cardinals 7-2 To Take Series

Chicago, May 28 — (P) — Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, one-time nemesis of the Chicago Cubs, failed for the third time to finish against the Bruins, who thumped the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2, today to take the rubber game of a three-tilt set.

Lefty Joe Hatten hurled his third victory against two defeats, scattering nine hits and aided by three timely Cub double plays, one with the bases loaded in the first.

Brecheen, now 0-3 for the season, suffered his second setback by the Cubs as he was touched for seven hits, walked five and trailed 4-0, before he departed after six innings.

Prior to this season, Brecheen had a lifetime record of 31-10 against the Cubs.

Brecheen's reliever, Dick Bokelmann, was victim of a three-run, four-hit Cub attack in the seventh.

Official Scorer Under Strain During No-Hitter

By Whitney Martin

New York, May 19 — (P) — The tension on a pitcher with a no-hitter in sight must be positively agonizing, but there is another guy in the ball park who is undergoing a similar strain, and can't do a thing about it.

He's the official scorer sitting up there in the press coop stewing in his own juice, praying fervently that if a hit does come it will be a robust clout which will leave no question as to its legitimacy.

The pitcher's tension is relieved somewhat by his own activity. That is, he can do something about it. The poor guy in the press coop must just sit there drumming his fingers, wiping the cold sweat from his brow and joining the insane conspiracy of silence which makes the mention of a no-hitter nothing short of a felony.

Every game is a potential no-hitter, and for that reason one of the Cardinal rules of scoring is to be certain the first hit off either pitcher in a game should leave no question as to its authenticity.

Nothing could be tougher on a pitcher or cause a scorer greater regret than to have an early blow called a hit when it could have been called either way, and to have that hit the only hit of the game off the pitcher.

We had personal experience with a no-hitter. It was many years ago when we were official scorers for Western league games in Omaha.

The game in question only went seven innings for some forgotten reason, and the only hit off a pitcher, whose name also is forgotten, should not have been a hit at all.

It was a towering fly directly in front of the mound. The pitcher and the catcher, and the third baseman, and the first baseman gathered in a huddle and while they were bowing to each other with a "you take it" the ball dropped untouched among them.

The evening two or three players came up to the office each begging that he be given an error on the play.

Allie Reynolds second no-hitter last year probably packed as much tension as any no-hitter could pack, inasmuch as the final man to face him was the best hitter in baseball, unless you want to argue a little about Stan Musial's claim to that honor.

With two outs in the ninth Ted Williams came to the plate, and Reynolds must have had to rebuff a strong temptation to throw four straight balls over his head and take a chance on the next hitter.

But Allie pitched to him, and what's more, really had to get Ted out twice. A high foul directly behind the plate found Yogi Berra circling around under the ball like he intended to surround it. He finally lunged, and missed.

Allie had it to do all over again, and he forced Teddy Boy to pop up another foul which this time Yogi mitted for keeps.

Gray's 4-Hitter Smothers Indians

Detroit, May 28 — (P) — Little Ted Gray hurled the last-place Detroit Tigers to their fourth straight victory over the first-place Cleveland Indians tonight, the Tigers winning 6-2 with the help of Pat Mullin's fluke two-run double and sloppy Cleveland fielding.

Gray gave up only four hits in pitching his fourth victory, two of them over the Indians, and lost a shutout in the seventh inning when Larry Doby hit a two-run homer 20 rows into the upper right field bleachers. The blow, one of the longest ever seen at Briggs Stadium, passed over the wall at the 415-foot marker.

Michigan State Defender In Big Ten Net Tournery

I've Got His Number Jersey Joe Says Of Ez

BY JACK HAND

Atlantic City, N. J., May 23 — Jersey Joe Walcott summed up his opinion of Ezzard Charles in one brisk sentence:

"I think I've got his number."

The 38-year-old heavyweight boxing champ believes he found the key to Charles' defense when he knocked Ezzzy loose from his title at Pittsburgh last July.

"You don't get over the effects of a knockout like that very quick," he said. "He was looking for my right hand all night. And I got him with the left. Now I've got him guessing."

A 3 to 1 underdog in the early betting for their June 5 clash at Philadelphia, Walcott looks no part of an old man in his training routine. Camp observers go away impressed by the aggressiveness of the old pappy guy from Camden, N. J., although he hasn't fought since July.

"That long layoff won't hurt me," he said.

Walcott said he was up around 209 pounds when he started training but he probably skied as high as 216 while on the long exhibition and personal appearance tour of youth centers, army camps and hospitals. Now he's down to 198 with four more pounds to go in the next two weeks.

They have been keeping it quiet in Walcott's camp that the champ actually boxed 10 rounds against Tony Merrill, Billy Smith and Jackie Burke in one session before his "formal" boxing started.

Jersey Joe chopped wood and did road work for about six weeks on the Mays Landing farm of Sheriff Charles Gormley of Atlantic county in April and early May.

Walcott insists he is no more, no less, confident of his ability to beat Charles than he was in previous fights. This will be the fourth meeting between the two heavyweights with the title at stake each time.

The champ said he watched Charles fight Rex Layne at Pittsburgh last October on television.

"Did he look like he was gun shy?" somebody asked.

Walcott grinned. When he did speak he said only, "he's a good fighter."

Brownies Beat Chisox On Paige's Relief Pitching

St. Louis, May 28 — (P) — Satchel Paige performed his relief role in usual fine style tonight to protect Bobby Cain's fourth victory of the year as the St. Louis Browns broke a four-game losing streak by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 3-1.

Paige stepped in to relieve Cain in the eighth with two out and runners on third and first. He got Sam Mele on an infield liner and then retired the side in order in the ninth.

Helping Paige along was Dick Kryhoski, who scored the third St. Louis run on his third home run of the year in the eighth.

Starter Chuck Stobbs was the loser, bowing to a three-hit, one-run Brownie rally in the seventh that put them in front for the first time. Howie Judson relieved and set the Browns down in quick style the rest of the way except for Kryhoski.

Ben Hogan Will Have Tough Time Against 'Duffers'

New York, May 28 — "It's going to be a difficult job to keep my score down where I won't lose to too many people," U.S. Open Champion Ben Hogan said today, after being informed of the National Golf Day competition he will be facing next Saturday when he plays a solo round at Dallas' rugged Northwood golf course. From coast to coast, across Canada, in Oklahoma, Balboa and at dozens of Army bases, thousands of new entries are signing up daily for the one-day tournament which offers golfers a chance to beat the champ and at the same time contribute to the support of the USO and the National Golf Fund.

Ben Crosby and Jack Benny will be among the many Hollywood stars out to win one of the coveted bronze medals inscribed "I Beat Ben Hogan." At the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, S.C., the commanding general will be setting the pace for other officers and enlisted men. In Washington, D.C., Hogan will have to beat members of the Left-Handed Club along with dozens of government officials, congressional and military figures. Caddies everywhere will be out in force. Oldest entry so far is 76-year old William Hackett of Monroe, Mich. Hackett insists he's a cinch to give Ben a lacing. Over 8,000 golfers will be competing against Hogan at the 50 courses in the Detroit area.

Kid Gavilan KO's Fritzie Pruden In Non-Title Bout

Indianapolis, May 28 — (P) — Kid Gavilan of Cuba, the welterweight champion, scored a knockout over Fritzie Pruden of Canada tonight when the ringside physician refused to let Pruden come out for the sixth round of their non-title bout. Gavilan weighed 150 lb., Pruden 150.

It was scored as a sixth-round knockout under National Boxing Association rules.

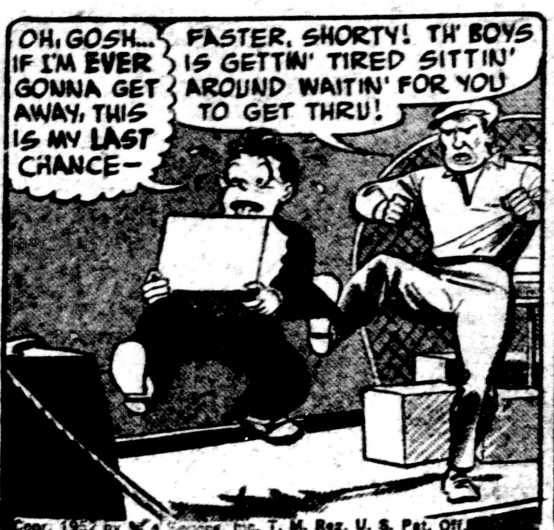

Pruden was bleeding from cuts around his eyes and the crowd had begun to yell for the referee to stop the one-sided scrap during the fifth round.

The bout was the first ever televised from an Indianapolis ring, and it didn't amount to much. Gavilan clearly was the master from the start, and he won as he pleased in what figured to be his final workout before his scheduled title fight with Gil Turner at Philadelphia July 7.

Alias Basil Willing

THE STORY: Jack Duggan, a private detective, is murdered after he posed as a Psychiatrist Basil Willing at a dinner at the home of Dr. Zimmer, also a psychiatrist. The same night Katherine Shaw, aged and blind, died under mysterious circumstances. Zimmer resumes his gatherings at which he had been studying some accident. But Charlotte, Dean, Miss Shaw's secretary, makes a report on the party to Basil. The guests, she said, were "a little distracted."

CHARLOTTE DEAN went on. "Mr. Yorke wasn't in the least uneasy. He didn't stammer, even hesitate or anything like that. But he did seem a little—weakly all evening and rather silent. As for Dr. Zimmer..." Charlotte smiled. "Has that man ever been ill at ease in his life? He's always the perfect host, genial and considerate, as ready to listen as to talk, not never at a loss for a word when there is an awkward pause. And so vastly civil, as they said in the 18th century! He wears his courtesy like armor and it makes him quite impenetrable to ordinary mortals like myself. But I do like him. And Mr. Shaw was very attentive to me."

"You've forgotten Mrs. Mann," said Gisela.

"She was just as usual. Not very profound in her conversation, perhaps, but always amiable and smiling." Charlotte's smile was rueful. "I know this is not the sort of thing you wanted to hear, Dr. Willing, but as nothing else happened, all I can report are these gossip little details that can't have much interest for you. I won't say I'm sorry. It would have been dreadful if that idea of yours about Miss Shaw had turned out to be true. I'm glad I've helped you to prove it wasn't so."

Basil's face was grave as he answered her. "My dear Miss Shaw, nothing has been proved yet. I've warned you of possible danger. Let me repeat that warning."

"Oh," Her eyes clouded. "And I thought it was all over..."

"Have you thought any more about this?" From his desk Basil took the scrap of paper they had found in Miss Shaw's copy of Keats.

"I haven't had time, really," Charlotte fumbled at her jacket and detached a long, slim, Italian cigarette. Daintily she peered through the lenses at the grubby scrap of paper. "All those letters and figures—4C104WS—the combination of a safe?"

"It looks more like a receipt for something that costs $30," said Gisela. "Something indicated by 4C104WS. Don't department stores use code numbers to indicate the type and size of clothing or other merchandise?"

"This isn't a department store tag or sales slip," answered Basil. "There's no printing. Just a handwritten scrawl."

"Then I really have no idea what it is," The forgerette snapped shut and dropped to dangle from its black ribbon. "I'm sorry to be of so little help to you!"

"Oh, but you have been a great deal of help," returned Basil. "More, perhaps, than you have any idea. And let me remind you of your promise not to mention this slip of paper to anyone. It would be dangerous."

AS soon as Charlotte had gone, Gisela turned to him in amazement. "You didn't tell her about Stephen Lawrence?"

"It would have altered her impression of the whole evening and distorted every observation she made," he explained.

"It's strange she hasn't heard about it already from someone else."

"You think so? Lawrence isn't going to talk about something that might be construed as his attempt at suicide or his daughter's attempt at mercy-killing. Neither is she. I shall not report it to anyone as anything but accident, for I have no evidence that it was anything else. Probably no one who was at that dinner last Friday has the slightest suspicion of what happened to Lawrence afterward—except the person responsible for it."

Gisela looked at him in consternation. "So they're all going to dine together again Friday night! Can't you do something?"

Basil did not appear to be listening. He was looking at the grubby scrap of paper with its scrawl of letters and figures—4C104WS...

That evening after dinner, he went to the bookshelves where he kept the old books he had inherited from his grandparents and took down a slim volume in mottled boards with spine and corners of leather—the sort of binding used in the 19th century when a magazine or pamphlet was bound at the owner's expense.

He was so absorbed that Gisela finally looked over his shoulder to see what it was. "Dickens! Of all things! 'Mrs. Lirriper's Legacy.' I never heard of it."

"It's an interesting story—or rather an interesting collection of stories—told by Mrs. Lirriper's lodgers. One of them is curiously modern, with the atmosphere that preceded the French Revolution doubling for the unrest of our own times. Yet my grandmother bought this on a railway station platform in 1870."

GISELA saw him reading the book several times in the next few days, but it was not until Friday afternoon that he put it down with a new look in his eyes—a look of decision and excitement.

"You've got an idea!" she exclaimed.

"Several ideas."

"Tell me."

"If I think I know why Duggan was killed and how."

"Did you get it from something Perdita omitted?"

"No. From something she added. Unnecessarily. There isn't time to talk now. I've only a couple of hours before these people meet again at Dr. Zimmer's. Do we have a street map of Manhattan?"
